EATING IN SOUTH AMERICA:

Eating in Chile and Argentina is a rich cultural experience that reflects the countries' diverse landscapes, climates, and traditions. Both countries are known for their high-quality meats, seafood, and wines, but they also offer unique regional dishes and culinary influences.

Eating in Chile

Chile's cuisine is shaped by its long coastline, fertile valleys, and diverse geography, offering an abundance of fresh seafood, produce, and meats.

Ceviche: Chilean ceviche is made with fresh raw fish (typically white fish) marinated in lemon or lime juice, with onions, cilantro, and sometimes a bit of spicy pepper. It's a coastal specialty.

Congrio (Conger Eel): A popular dish often grilled or fried, with the creamy Caldillo de Congrio (conger eel soup) being a national favourite.

Empanadas: Chilean empanadas are typically filled with beef, onions, hard-boiled eggs, and olives. The version called Empanada de Pino is especially popular.

Pastel de Choclo: A dish similar to shepherd's pie, it's made with ground beef, chicken, corn, and eggs, topped with a creamy corn mixture and baked.

Chile is one of the world's top wine producers, famous for its Carmenère, Cabernet Sauvignon, and Sauvignon Blanc. The wine-growing regions, like the Colchagua and Maipo Valleys, are perfect for wine tasting and food pairings.

Eating in Argentina

Argentina is globally renowned for its beef, especially the traditional asado (barbecue), which is at the heart of Argentine social life. Along with meats, Argentina offers a range of delicious pastas, pizzas, and sweets, thanks to its Italian and Spanish heritage. Owing to the large Italian immigrant population, Argentina offers excellent pasta dishes like ravioli, gnocchi (traditionally eaten on the 29th of each month for luck), and lasagna.

Asado: The Argentine barbecue is a slow-cooking method using various cuts of beef, ribs (costillas), sausages (chorizo and morcilla), and other meats like lamb or pork. It's often enjoyed with friends and family as a communal meal.

Empanadas: These vary by region but are commonly filled with beef, chicken, cheese, or ham. The northern provinces feature empanadas seasoned with cumin and paprika.

Argentina is famous for its Malbec, especially from the Mendoza region, which is known for producing world-class red wines. Torrontés, a fragrant white wine, is another Argentine specialty, particularly in the Salta region.

Lunch and Dinner Times: In both countries, lunch is typically the main meal of the day, and dinners can be late, often starting around 9 PM.

Drinking bottled water and eating well-cooked food is strongly recommended. It's much safer to stick to bottled, treated or boiled water. Ice, along with salads or fruits washed in tap water should likewise be avoided. All the restaurants we visit will be researched and inspected regularly to ensure that they follow the strictest health, cleanliness, and safety guidelines.

Those with dietary requirements will be well catered for - just make sure to inform your booking agent of any specific requirements well in advance of your trip.

ACCOMMODATION:

Your accommodation is selected for convenience of location, comfort or character, and can range from business hotels to lodges. Hotels are generally rated as local four-star standard, but please note that there is no international classification system for hotels and differences in facilities and quality may exist between New Zealand and South America. If you experience any difficulty, please speak to your Local Guide. Rest assured that all hotels used by Wendy Wu Tours are regularly inspected by our staff and our partners to ensure that standards meet your needs.

SOUVENIRS:

We want to be able to give you an opportunity to buy souvenirs, so we include some stops at museums or exhibitions that demonstrates a craft or product unique to that region with pieces available to buy. We understand that souvenir hunting is not for everyone, so we aim to take you to places that hold local interest. We trust you will enjoy these opportunities to learn about local arts and crafts and understand their historical and cultural importance.

TRANSPORT:

Coaches: Coaches with air conditioning are used for city sightseeing, short excursions to the countryside and longer transfers where necessary. Travel between major cities is easily accessible, faster, and safe, while road conditions in rural and mountainous areas are impacted by rainy conditions.

Planes: Internal flights are based on economy class, with reputable airlines. Within South America flights are often changed multiple times before departure, both timings and flight numbers. The utmost care will be taken to ensure that your final documents will have the latest information, however your local guide will confirm this in destination. Boarding passes can be collected directly at the airport. The flights booked as part of your itinerary will always reflect the best timings to suit the touring itinerary, with direct flights wherever possible, however due to limited schedules some flights may require an early departure or late arrival.

Ferries: In southern Chile, ferries are a key mode of transportation, especially in regions like Patagonia and the fjords. Ferries operate between Puerto Montt and Puerto Natales, among other routes.

APPROPRIATE DRESS:

When traveling in Chile, Argentina, and across the Andes, dressing appropriately is key to staying comfortable while navigating diverse climates and landscapes. The weather can vary widely depending on the region and season, so it's important to pack with flexibility in mind.

Layering is Key: Both countries have varied climates, from the arid Atacama Desert in northern Chile to the cool, windy Patagonia in the south. Layering allows you to adapt to changing temperatures throughout the day.

Comfortable Footwear: Whether you're walking through cities, hiking in Patagonia, or crossing the Andes, sturdy, comfortable footwear is essential.

Weather Considerations: Seasons are reversed in the Southern Hemisphere, so winter (June-August) can be cold in Patagonia, while summer (December-February) can be very hot in northern regions like the Atacama Desert.

Appropriate Dress for Andean Crossing (Cruce Andino)

The Andean Crossing between Chile and Argentina (often from Puerto Varas to Bariloche) involves varying altitudes and weather conditions, so dressing in layers is crucial for comfort during the journey. Here's what to wear:

Warm Layers: Even if you're crossing in summer, the temperatures can drop at higher altitudes or during the boat trips across the lakes. Wear a base layer, followed by a fleece or sweater, and a windproof jacket on top.

Waterproof Jacket: The Andean Crossing involves outdoor travel, often by boat, where you can experience rain or wind. A good waterproof and windproof jacket is important.

Comfortable, Sturdy Footwear: There's some walking involved during the crossing, so comfortable shoes, like hiking boots or sturdy sneakers, are recommended. Choose shoes with a good grip, as some paths can be wet or uneven.

Hat and Gloves: If you're crossing in cooler months, pack a beanie or hat and gloves to protect yourself from the wind and cold, especially during boat rides or while waiting at high-altitude points.

Sunscreen and Sunglasses: Even if it's cool, the sun at higher altitudes can be intense, so wearing sunscreen and polarized sunglasses is essential to protect your skin and eyes.

Summer (December-February): Lightweight clothing for daytime heat, especially in northern regions, but always bring a jacket for cooler evenings and the Andean crossing.

Winter (June-August): In Patagonia and mountainous regions, pack winter gear—insulated jackets, thermal layers, hats, and gloves. For cities, a warm coat is sufficient.

TIPPING POLICY:

Tipping while on holiday is common in most parts of the world and South America is no exception. We will provide suggested tipping amounts with your final documents for your convenience, however tipping is entirely at your own discretion.

LUGGAGE:

All travellers are limited to two items of luggage each: a suitcase with a maximum weight of 20kg and one piece of hand luggage with a maximum weight of five kilograms. It is essential that your luggage is lockable. Please note that authorities will only allow bottles onto the aircraft if they have been checked in as main baggage. Bottles in hand luggage may be confiscated.

PORTERAGE:

Please be aware that porterage is not included. You will therefore need to be able to handle your own luggage within the hotel and when using transportation like boats and coaches.

VACCINATIONS AND YOUR HEALTH:

We recommend that you contact either your Doctor or Health centre for advice on vaccinations and travel health. Safetravel has a comprehensive website that you may also find useful www.safetravel.govt.nz

BEFORE YOU LEAVE:

We strongly recommend registering your travel plans with www.safetravel.govt.nz as in the event of an emergency, New Zealand Consular assistance will be more readily available.

Up until the day you travel, it is vital you keep up to date and familiarised with the entry requirements as these can change at short notice. You are personally responsible for completing any entry forms, conducting any covid tests (if necessary), etc and adhering to countries' specific entry requirements.

You can also access the New Zealand Government's travel advisory service for up-to-date information about your destination on the same website.

AFTER YOUR BOOKING:

Once you have booked with Wendy Wu Tours, you will receive a confirmation invoice including a visa application form (if applicable), and a help sheet. Your final documentation pack will be sent to you approximately 2-3 weeks prior to departure.
